Global Macro, Policy, and the Shifting World Order

Navigating Fiscal Influence in Monetary Framework* \(EN WebEx\)

17-Jun-2026 11:00 AM SGT by Wilson Teo

This session explores the concept of fiscal dominance, where fiscal needs shape monetary decisions, and its implications for inflation, bond markets, and policy credibility. Participants will use LSEG Workspace to compare fiscal balances, interest rate paths, and debt servicing trends across economies.

Recession Risks? Indicators to Monitor US Economic Health* \(EN WebEx\)

18-Jun-2026 11:30 AM SGT by Wilson Teo

In response to concerns about changing global trade policies, financial institutions have increased the likelihood of a US recession following the implementation of the US' reciprocal tariffs across 180 countries. This webinar will delve into various indicators beyond traditional economic data to assess the state of the US economy.

Islamic Banking and Finance: Overview of Market Structure and Key Developments* \(EN WebEx\)

23-Jun-2026 11:00 AM SGT by Wilson Teo

This session provides an overview of Islamic banking and finance, outlining observed developments in asset size, sector participation, and product formats. The session covers key information on digital platforms, tokenised sukuk structures, demographic trends, and financial products across global markets. Participants also learn about apps and content available on LSEG Workspace to support their review of Islamic finance datasets.

Fragmented Future: Mapping Shifting Global Dynamics* \(EN WebEx\)

24-Jun-2026 11:30 AM SGT by Wilson Teo

This LSEG Workspace session explores the rise of global fragmentation — a shift away from unified multilateralism toward competing blocs, divergent standards, and regionalized governance. From BRICS+ to the rewiring of trade and capital flows, the world is reorganizing along geopolitical, economic, and regulatory lines. Drawing on recent IMF research and global policy debates, participants will examine the drivers, risks, and competing visions of this emerging order.

Shadow Bailouts: Rethinking Market Support Mechanisms* \(EN WebEx\)

25-Jun-2026 11:30 AM SGT by Wilson Teo

As financial systems evolve, so do the tools used to stabilise them. Central banks and governments are increasingly deploying indirect interventions, such as liquidity windows, backstops, and guarantee schemes, that operate outside traditional bailout frameworks. This session explores the mechanics, motivations, and market implications of these “shadow bailouts.”

Participants will use LSEG Workspace to track policy announcements, central bank balance sheets, and market reactions. The goal is to understand how these tools shape risk perception and asset pricing.

Markets, Capital Flows, and Financial System DynamicsCapital Controls Revisited: Shifts in Financial Openness* \(EN WebEx\)

16-Jun-2026 11:00 AM SGT by Wilson Teo

While global capital markets remain largely open, a number of countries are introducing subtle restrictions on cross-border flows. This session examines the re-emergence of capital controls and their impact on investment and currency markets. Participants will use LSEG Workspace to monitor FX regimes, policy changes, and capital flow data.

Private Equity or Public Equity? Cracking the Code of Strategic Investments* \(EN WebEx\)

17-Jun-2026 11:30 AM SGT by Wilson Teo

This class provides a deep dive into the strategic considerations behind allocating capital to private and public equity markets. Participants will gain insights into manager selection, capital recycling, and the evolving landscape of leveraged buyouts, venture capital, and growth equity. The course will also address liquidity challenges, financing costs, and exit strategies, equipping investors with the tools to optimize portfolio allocations.

The Multipolar Currency Myth? Evaluating Global Reserve Shifts* \(EN WebEx\)

18-Jun-2026 11:00 AM SGT by Wilson Teo

Despite growing interest in currency diversification, the U.S. dollar remains dominant in global reserves, trade, and finance. This session explores the gap between narrative and reality in the rise of alternative currency blocs. Participants will use LSEG Workspace to analyse FX reserves, trade settlement currencies, and cross-border payment data.

Technology, AI, and Structural TransformationComparative Analysis Between AI-Hype vs Dotcom Bubble - Will Nasdaq Crash Again?* \(EN WebEx\)

16-Jun-2026 11:30 AM SGT by Wilson Teo

Recent AI-hype driven surge has caused concern if it will end the same way as the dotcom boom - with an epic crash. Nasdaq Composite plunged by about 80% from its peak and took more than a decade to recover. The aim of this class is to discuss, using Workspace, the opportunities and threats to the tech growth.

Technology-Driven Economic Shifts: Productivity and Market Impacts* \(EN WebEx\)
